

Panama Papers: 10 things you need to know about the world's biggest ever leak

 By Stuart Thomas

4 Apr 2016

The term "Panama Papers" is about to become a major part of the global lexicon. That's because it represents something very big: the largest data leak in human history.

© Memeburn

The data comes primarily from a Panamanian law firm and forms the basis of what describes itself as “a global investigation into the sprawling, secretive industry of offshore that the world’s rich and powerful use to hide assets and skirt rules by setting up front companies in far-flung jurisdictions”.

Bigger than both Wikileaks and the Snowden files, the investigation has revealed “a cast of characters who use offshore companies to facilitate bribery, arms deals, tax evasion, financial fraud and drug trafficking”.

Click through to the full article on Memeburn for 10 important things you need to know about the Panama Papers.

ABOUT STUART THOMAS

Stuart abandoned what was beginning to look like a long, quiet career in academia for the frenetic world of tech journalism. Currently heading up the Memeburn team, he likes to run in his downtime. He won an award once. It now sits on his desk.

- Panama Papers: 10 things you need to know about the world's biggest ever leak - 4 Apr 2016
- What's going on with M4JAM? - 16 Mar 2016
- Could a smartphone app really help combat crime in SA? - 15 Mar 2016
- Why is this SA radio legend betting big on personality-driven streaming apps? - 14 Mar 2016
- Mxit: how did Alan Knott-Craig Jr's R500m bet go so badly wrong? - 27 Oct 2015

View my profile and articles...

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>