

IQ business lunch

Friday, 31 August, saw a 'bevy' of talented professional women join IQ Business for an afternoon of pampering and exploring the five senses.

The event started with a light lunch of various culinary delights from, head chef and owner of Cube Tasting Kitchen which were paired beautifully with bubbly and molecular cocktails supplied by BehindBars.

The afternoon ensued with the various groups' sense of smell being enticed with floral creations from Craig Kalil of 'Flowers by Craig'; visual stimulation with 'lipstick art' by the talented Sarah Britten who completed Jozi skylines with each group; Anisa du Plessis inspired the ladies with beautiful crocheted blankets and necklaces and showed the nack of mixing textures in home accessories; and lastly Louise Carver shared her inspiration for penning lyrics and adding the musical notes. The ladies were also tempted with a photography option including make-up artists and professional photographers. The afternoon closed with a wine-tasting which showcased exclusive wines by Domaine wines. All in all, a fabulous time was had by everyone with an afternoon that celebrated the arrival of Spring, the five senses and the beauty and creativity of women. The event was superbly executed by JUST ADD events and activations agency.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>