

Google, Amazon quarrel gets heated

Amazon and Google's tit for tat relationship has taken to new heights after Google announced on 6 December 2017 that it will be restricting YouTube access on Amazon products.

Google decided to implement the restriction since Amazon does not sell Google's products.

The restriction means that Amazon's Echo Show and its Fire TV can only access YouTube through its existing website, not through the app.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>