

Government bias media

I read comments and reports from the commercial media and its "credible" senior editors, but cannot help but notice the panic about the new competition which promises to advocate for positive South Africa.

One would think that after the world cup we all support positivity among South Africans and what better way to do this than publishing news that aren't tarnishing and undermining the achievements made by both Western Cape [DA] and National [ANC] governments.

I will not get into the politics of "our" commercial media and guessing whose interests are really being cushioned.

I say lets give the new publication a chance and see what comes out of it..

Forum created by Steve Weinstein

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>