Global innovation accelerator, Startupbootcamp, launched its first African-based programme last month. Kicking off in September 2017 and led by innovation experts Zachariah George, Philip Kiracofe, and Paul Nel, a three-month intense “bootcamp” will take place in Cape Town to scale selected startups.

“The aim is to grow disruptive startups and connect them with dynamic corporates, providing both with an opportunity to collaborate and build the African innovation ecosystem,” shares George.

The 10 most promising teams will be selected from a pool of hundreds of applicants and provided with €15,000, 100+ highly engaged industry mentors, free office space, access to funding and a network of industry partners, investors and venture capital firms.

FastTrack events

Ahead of the application deadline, 16 FastTrack events will be held all over the globe for the local talent to present their ideas to the Startupbootcamp Cape Town team and sponsors for pre-application advice and feedback.

The South African FastTracks will be held in Cape Town (Thursday, 11 May 2017) and Johannesburg (Thursday, 18 May 2017) and hosted by sponsors RCS and PWC respectively. Startups can apply now to attend.

“RCS wholeheartedly believes in supporting initiatives such as Startupbootcamp Africa, and looks forward to hosting the very first FastTrack event on at our head office in Cape Town’, said Regan Adams, CEO of RCS.
