The Minister of Arts and Culture, Mr Nathi Mthethwa will be speaking at the third BASA Business Breakfast, supported by Standard Bank, adding impact to an already strong line-up.

Minister Mthethwa joins Samuel Mensah, the founder and CEO of the innovative digital platform, KISUA, as well as Business and Arts South Africa CEO, Michelle Constant, at the event which takes place at The Orbit in Braamfontein on Tuesday, May 26th.

The BASA Africa Business Breakfasts, supported by Standard Bank, are open to all business members, with tickets costing R300 a person. The underpinning theme of the series is the role of the arts in supporting businesses in their engagement on the African continent.

"The recent xenophobic attacks in South Africa have once again shown the importance of engagement and collaboration across the continent," says Constant.

"The arts offer an excellent opportunity to drive collaborative and co-creative projects. The Africa Breakfast, supported by Standard Bank strives to identify these opportunities further for business."

Nkosinathi Emmanuel "Nathi" Mthethwa has been the Minister of Arts and Culture since 26 May 2014 and so will be making his inaugural BASA Business Breakfast appearance on the one-year anniversary of his appointment.

Samuel Mensah is the founder and CEO of KISUA. Formerly, he was the Africa director for Intel Capital - a role in which he would invest in innovative African technology companies and start-ups. Mensah holds an MA in Economics and Management from Oxford University and has worked with the African Union, governments, telecommunications and financial institutions to increase access to technology on the continent. KISUA is an innovative digital platform offering exclusive contemporary African fashion online while KISUA's online magazine is brimming with original stories about Afropolitan style, music, art and culture.

The upcoming event is the third in the series of BASA Business Breakfasts, supported by Standard Bank.

The May 26th event follows the closing breakfast of 2014 which featured Alex Okosi, Senior Vice President & Managing Director of Viacom International Media Networks Africa; Hazel Chimhandamba, Head of Group Sponsorships at Standard Bank and Tony Lankester, National Arts Festival CEO.
