We are seeking a talented Full-Stack engineer to join our team and take ownership of building a comprehensive photo management website.

As the senior engineer on this project, you will collaborate closely with our design team to bring their vision to life, ensuring a seamless and visually stunning user experience.

This role requires expertise in both front-end and back-end development and proficiency in AWS for hosting and deployment.

Responsibilities:

- Architect and develop the front and back end of the website using modern web technologies such as HTML5, CSS3, JavaScript, and frameworks like React.js and Django.
- Design and develop the back-end infrastructure, including database management, API development, and server-side scripting using Node.js / Python or similar technologies.
- Collaborate with the design team to understand project requirements and translate them into technical specifications.
- Integrate external/third-party APIs and services as needed for features such as image processing, authentication, and cloud storage, payment gateways, etc.
- Collaborate with cross-functional teams, including designers, product managers, and other engineers, to ensure timely delivery of features.

Requirements:

- HTML5, CSS3, JavaScript, and frameworks like React.js and Django.
- AWS experience in designing and developing the back-end infrastructure, including database management, API development, and server-side scripting using Node.js / Python or similar technologies.

You will work closely with the founder of the business and the frontend designers.
