

Edan TV rolls out new TV show 'The River'

'The River', the new series from the country of Nelson Mandela, arrives exclusively on the pan-African channel Edan TV.

The River cast.

This high-profile South African series will make you live the powerful and dramatic story of two communities that face each other on both sides of a river: on one side, the high society that lives in sumptuous homes and does not hesitate to do everything to maintain their wealth; on the other hand, the exploited “ordinary people” who struggle constantly with little result.

The Apis River that runs through Pretoria is so much more than a river. It is a boundary that separates two worlds and that will become the object of greed and covetousness by the strength of the diamond.

The managing director of Edan TV, Joel Amos Badi, declared, “In addition to The River, Women's Business, a talk show that will enrich the programming of this entertainment channel will soon be available. This is a 26-minute weekly program produced in Ivory Coast that allows women to look at crucial social issues. Through these African programs, the channel wants more than ever to demonstrate its roots in Africa.”

Edan TV, a pan-African channel offers an African series prime time on its antenna every day. Edan TV is available on Orange TV in Ivory Coast, Canal 59, Canal + for all French-speaking Africa and Moov TV in Ivory Coast.
